FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Please consult the online "Facilitating the PSEA Training" course at https://intranetportal/Pages/I-LEARN.aspx

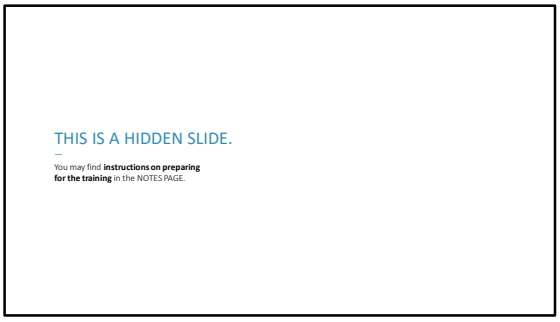

- In this online course, you will find all the information and material you need to prepare for and facilitate the PSEA training.
- If you do not have Internet access, please consult the next hidden slide for training preparation details.
- If you have additional questions after reviewing the available material, please contact gcu@iom.int

II. Read the introduction below for additional background on this training session.

- This guide is meant to help you facilitate an information and awareness-raising session that introduces the issue of Prevention of Sexual Exploitation and Abuse (PSEA) to IOM staff members in your mission. It also serves as a refresher for staff who were trained with PSEA training materials developed in 2012.
- This session should be facilitated by your office's PSEA Focal Point (or senior manager), who may receive support by one or two other staff members as appropriate. Co-facilitators can be an HR officer or a colleague with strong training skills or relevant program experience.

- In order to convey the appropriate message regarding the seriousness and importance of the subject matter, it is imperative that awareness-raising sessions be conducted by facilitators in positions of authority and seniority within the mission. It is the Chief of Mission's responsibility to ensure that all mission staff can attend and benefit from this session.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

In addition to the PowerPoint presentation, facilitators will require the following:

I. For the Introduction:
- Access to the Internet, if possible, in order to consult the following site: https://www.iom.int/sites/default/files/Organigram.pdf.

II. For Activity #1:
- For each participant, one printed (laminated) copy of the story below:
  - Act1_SEA_Story-AFRIDA: SEA story #2, with Implementing Partners (IP) as main characters
- Make sure to tell participants not to write in these documents. They will be reused for each training session you facilitate.
- Two laminated copies of the Act1_SEA_Story_Questionnaire for each team.
- Two washable sharpies for each team.

III. For Activity #2:
- The laminated Act2_PR_Character_Cards arranged by male and female roles.

IV. For Activity #5:
- One set of laminated Act5_RolePlay_Cards_IP for each team (between 4 to 7 sets, depending on the group size).

- One example of the Act8_Team-Commitment document (printed on sticky paper) per team.
- One example of the Act8_Puzzle_Content document per team.

INTRODUCTION GOALS

- To introduce the topic of SEA within the humanitarian worldwide sector.
- To engage participants in the learning process they will experience of the training
- To establish a safe learning environment

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. After greeting the participants, introduce yourself.

- Provide your name and role, then summarize your experience at IOM.

II. Ask the participants to quickly say their name, their role within the organization, and how long they've been at IOM.

- We work with each other every day, but do we know anything interesting about our colleagues? Ask them to share what led them to come and work for IOM, and what impact(s) it has had in their lives.

DISCLAIMER

Topics, stories and vocabulary used in this training might be difficult to hear.

However, IOM believes that the harsh reality of SEA must be faced, and that this begins by employing the right words to describe the seriousness of the problem.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Take one minute to warn participants about the difficult matters that will be explored during the day, and acknowledge that this is needed in order to go at the root of the SEA situation.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to name 4 facts about their organization in their country (4 topics on screen or any other).

- Inform the class which team/office you belong to, while providing a visual representation of the organization (use this link if needed: https://www.iom.int/sites/default/files/Organigram.pdf).
- Use the organigram of your specific mission if it is relevant for your audience.
- Mention that IOM, along with them and many other implementing partners, is a very diverse organization, with thousands of staff providing help to millions around the world.

II. Talk about their organization and how they collaborate with IOM, and emphasize the trust our beneficiaries place in us.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask:

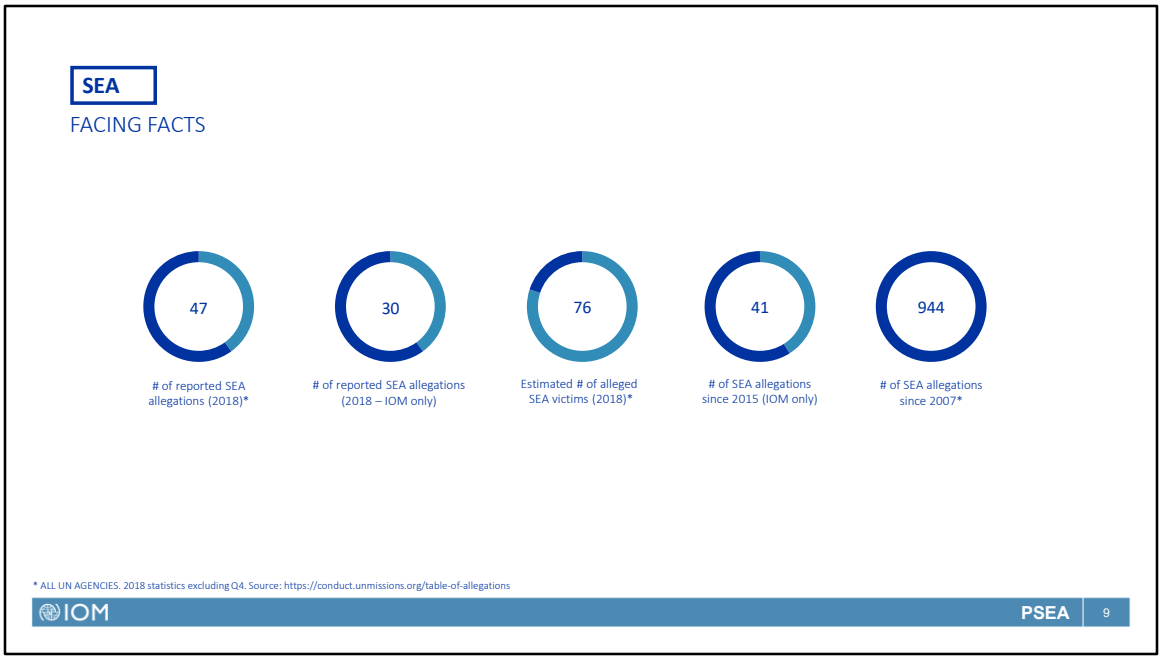

- "Why are we here today?"
- Listen to the answers provided by participants. If no one answers, ask a couple of participants at random.
- Briefly elaborate on the answers and address any misconceptions about the training if certain learner expectations diverge from the training objectives.

II. If you can, click on the video link (bottom left corner of the slide) to show the "Moon-walking bear"video to your group.

- (You might need to download it in advance, if you do not have access to the Internet: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xNSgmm9FX2s)
- As a different video option- not embedded in the slide please download the "Whodunnit?" https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ubNF9QNEQLA

III. Show the answer on screen and emphasize the importance of the participants' presence here today.

- “We are here today because it’s easy to miss something that none of us is looking for.”
- “We all wish that SEA did not exist, but you know more than anyone that this is unfortunately not the reality.”
- “Not only does it exist, but it’s happening in our organization under our very own eyes, and we must put an end to it.”

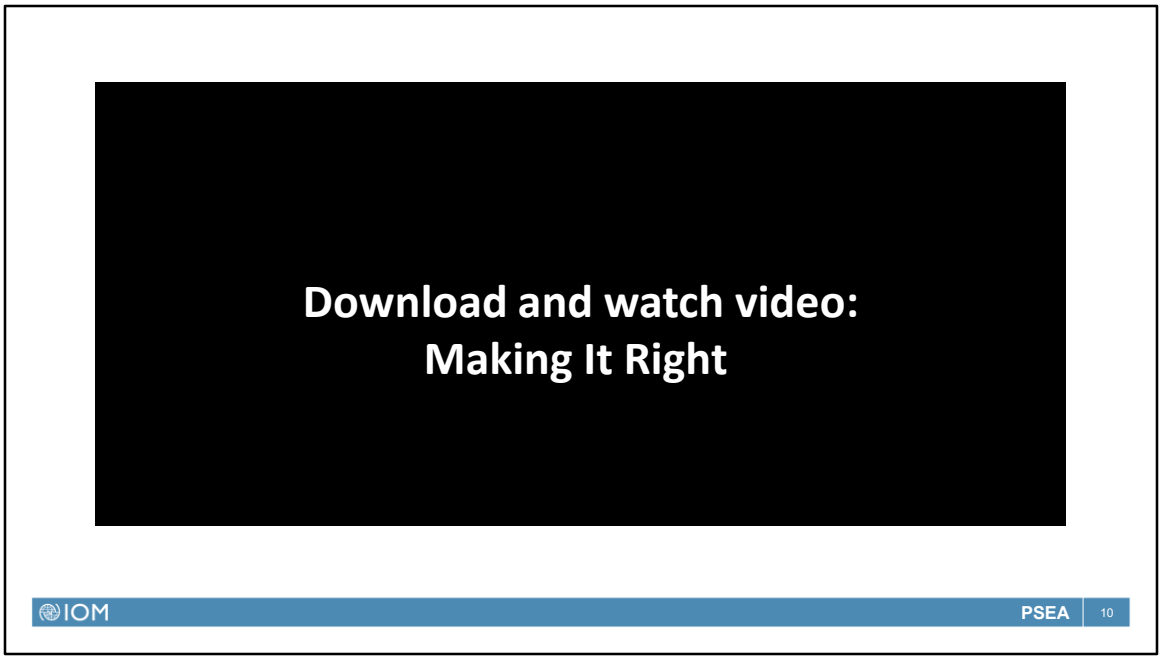

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to guess the numbers for the categories on screen:
   Number of reported SEA allegations in 2018 (all UN)
   Estimated total number of alleged SEA victims in 2018 (all UN)
   Number of SEA allegations reported since 2007 (all UN)

II. To be able to constantly update the slide with the latest available data on SEA, please consult the following website before your training: https://www.un.org/preventing-sexual-exploitation-and-abuse/content/data-allegations-un-system-wide

III. Emphasize the gap between the reported allegations and the real estimated number of SEA victims in 2018.

IV. Play video (next slide).

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Once the video is over, ask participants how they feel about the information they just learned.

- Are they shocked?
- Did they expect the numbers to be so high, or the situation to be so shocking?

To showcase the video, download it before on weareallin.iom.int, in the training material page.

AGAIN

WHY ARE YOU HERE TODAY?

To learn how to define and detect SEA	To remind ourselves our duty to always put the victims first	To be transparent about everything surrounding SEA reporting and investigations	To answer frequently asked questions about the SEA reporting process	To COMMIT, as individuals and as an organization, to putting an end to SEA

IOM PSEA 11

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Explain the specific reasons for why everyone is here today.

- Show the answers and read them to the class.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Briefly describe the topics that will be explored during the day.

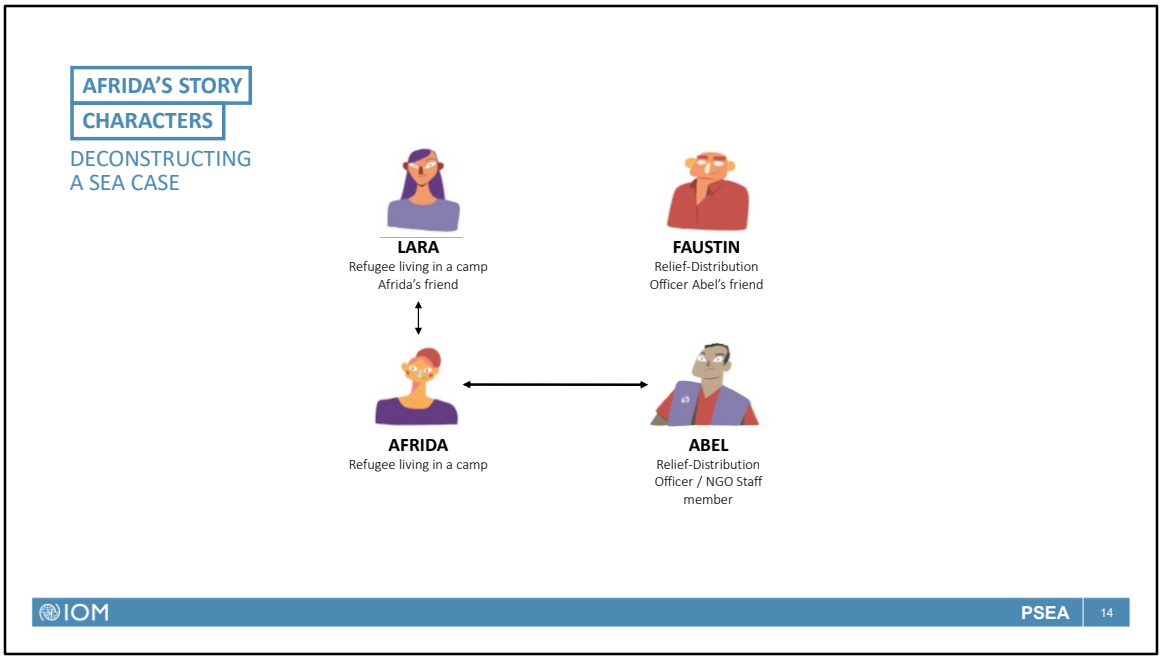

01

ACTIVITY 01

DECONSTRUCTING A SEA CASE

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To contextualize the problem of SEA within IOM/UN
- To initiate discussions on elements comprising and/or surrounding SEA situations
- To get learners to personally, socially and emotionally value the importance of PSEA

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Hand out the Act1 SEA Story document to each participant.

- Ask each participant to individually read the fictional SEA story.
- Duration: 10 minutes

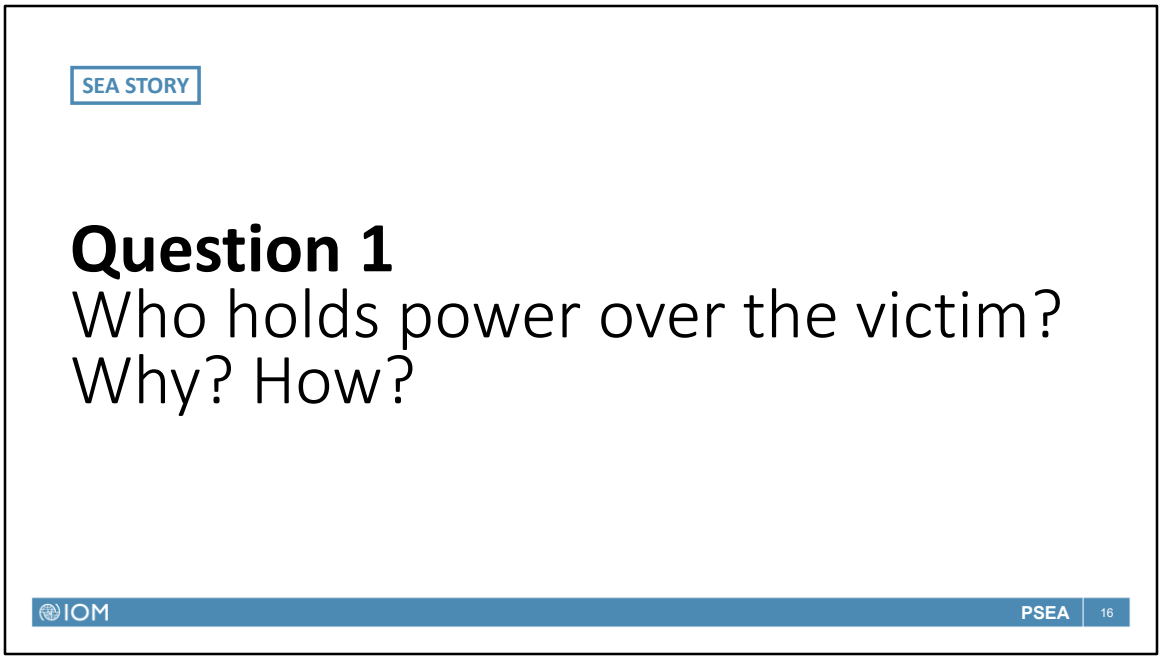

02

ACTIVITY 02

DEMYSTIFYING POWER RELATIONS

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To contextualize notions of power relations and influence To demonstrate how gender-based stereotypes contribute to maintaining unequal power relations

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to get together in teams of 6-8.

- Try as much as possible to have even-numbered teams.
- If possible, try to have each team include members from different missions/units/departments.
- Tell them to take a moment to review their story.
- Then, provide each team with 2 copies of the Act1_SEA Story Questionnaire document (or enough copies for everyone to easily consult one), as well as 1-2 washable markers.

II. Post question 1 on screen and ask participants to answer it.

- Give them 10-15 minutes to complete question 1.
- Don't correct the activity yet – complete the Power Relation Activity presented in the next 2 slides before.
- Answering question 1 before the Power Relation Activity might confront certain learners to inherent misbeliefs or assumptions that they have about power dynamics.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Take the Act2_PR_Character_Cards and, as much as possible:

- Distribute female roles to men, and male roles to women. Tell participants to not show their card to anyone.
- Each participant should take a few minutes to imagine his/her character's life in terms of family, livelihood, emotional state, health, etc.

II. Make enough space for participants to walk across the classroom without running into any barriers. Ask all participants to stand on one side of the room.

III. Tell participants that they will hear a series of statements. When they feel they can answer YES to one of them, they should take one step forward. If they feel they would not answer YES, then they should not move.

IV. Printable Instructions on the Power Walk and CARDS are available in the NOTES PAGE VIEW of this PPT as well as in the weareallin.iom.int website, in the training page. Download them and read the statements written on the instruction page.

- I can influence decisions made at community level.
- I get to meet visiting government officials.
- I can read newspapers regularly.
- I have time and access to the Internet.
- I have my own bank account.
- I can speak in extended family meetings.
- I have access to clean drinking water.
- I went to secondary or I expect to go to secondary school.
- I can pay for treatment at a hospital if necessary.
- I can speak at a village meeting.
- I eat at least two full meals a day.
- I sometimes attend workshops and seminars.
- I am not afraid of walking on my own at night.
- I have a say on how family money is spent.
- I am not afraid of violence in my home.
- I have never had to line up or beg for food.
- I do not have to worry about providing for myself or my family.
- I live in a place that I rent or own.
- I have legal status in my country of residence.
- I feel welcome where I am.

V. Keep reading the questions out loud until the person in front is no longer able to move forward.

- At the end, starting from the back of the room, ask each participant to reveal who their character is.
- If some people are not in the correct space, place them approximately where they should fall.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Discuss with your group:

- Ask participants what they think the trend is and why they believe some participants moved further ahead than others.
- Ask everyone to stay where they are. Starting from the back of the room, ask each participant to reveal his or her character.
- Ask a few people at the back of the room: "How did you feel? What was it like to be at the back of the room?"
- Ask the men who had been given a female role how they felt. Do the same for women who had been given male roles.
- Ask a few people at the front: "How did you feel? What was it like to be in the front of room?" You may also ask a few people in the middle.
- Invite the rest of the group to also comment on what happened.

II. Reflect on the meaning of power relations within the organization, and debrief the topic with your group:

- Ask: "In our operations and the environment we work in, who holds the power?"
- Brainstorm: Government, men, adults, police, military, etc. Acknowledge those more vulnerable members of the community, as revealed in the exercise.

- State: "All of these statements are about power or access to power. So, what do we mean by POWER?"
- Elicit: Power is the ability to influence or control. It includes access to decision-making processes.

- Ask: "Those who felt strong or powerful, why did you feel powerful?"
- Ask: "Those who did not, why not? For those in the back, why do you think you were in that position?"
- Elicit what things give people power: money, position, authority, gender.
- Elicit what elements contribute to abuse based on power inequalities: vulnerability, poverty, breakdown in social structures (such as during displacement), lack of legal protection, impunity for perpetrators, culture, gender beliefs.

- Ask: "Is power always bad?"
- Elicit: No. Power can be used in positive ways but the potential for abuse is there.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Go back the answers of the SEA Story's question 1.

- Now, having completed the Power Relations activity, ask each team to take a moment to review their answers to question one. They can correct their answers if they want to.
- Ask each team to choose a spokesperson within their group.
- Ask one spokesperson at a time to reveal the results of their discussion, one character at a time. The class can debrief and discuss the answers of others.
- If you are short on time, discuss the answers to question 1 with the entire class instead of team by team.
- Once every team/the class has presented their answers for one character, show the answer key on screen and discuss it further with the class if needed.
- Repeat for every character.

II. Conclude the activity by presenting the key messages below:

- Violence and exploitation are almost always linked to power. Those who have more power can exploit and abuse others. Those who have the least power are most likely to be exploited and abused.

- Today we are talking very specifically about abuses that happen at the hands of IOM staff and partners. However, it is important to bear in mind the context in which this occurs and to realize that this is part of a much larger problem of gender-based violence.

ACTIVITY 03

DEFINING SEXUAL EXPLOITATION AND ABUSE

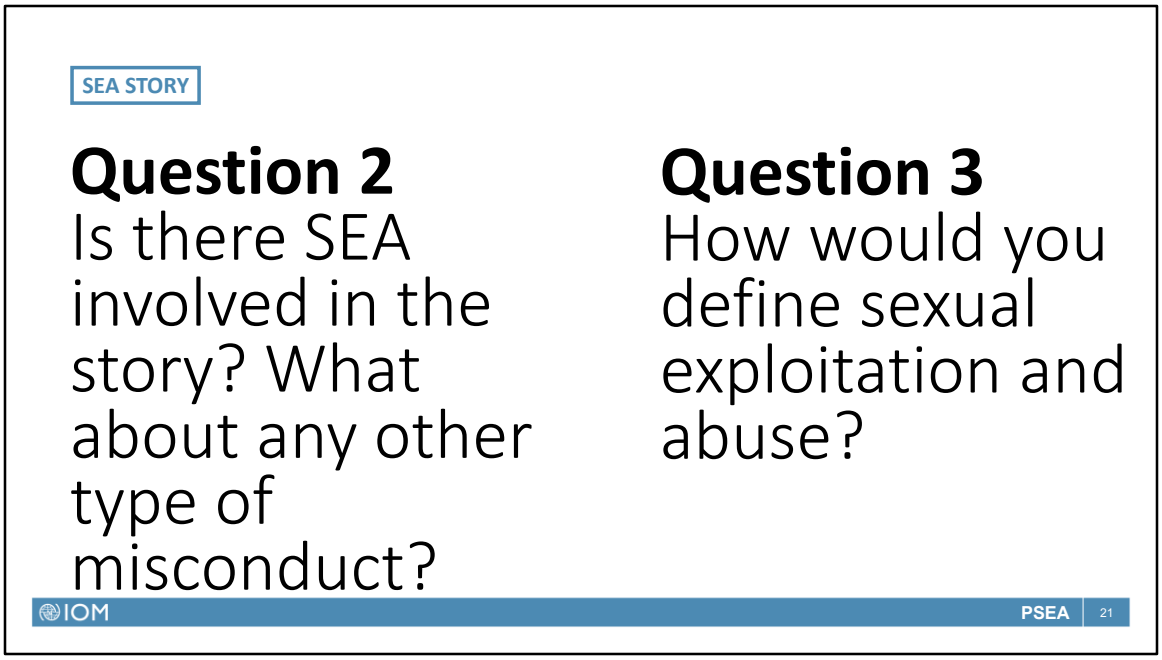

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To validate participants' understanding of SE, SA and SH notions
- To address any misconceptions by clearly defining each concept and providing contextual examples

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to remain in the same teams for this next activity.

- Explain that the terms "sexual harassment," "abuse" and "exploitation" can easily blur together in everyday life.
- Because of this ambiguity, and because we want to be able to detect SEA when we encounter it, it is important to address all misconceptions about these terms.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Post question 2 and 3 on screen and ask participants to answer them in teams.

- Give them 10-15 minutes to complete question 2 and 3.
- Don't correct the questions yet – complete the activities of the next slides before.

REAL-LIFE ALLEGATIONS

IS THIS SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OR ABUSE?

REAL ALLEGATIONS

- "Two staff members are known to use sex workers.
- They openly talk about it.
- One even uses his allowance exclusively for sex workers when on leave. This is common knowledge…"

- "Mr. X was planning to accompany a young woman still recovering from the sexual abuse she experienced during her upbringing.
- Describing the trip, he said: "I've thought about escorting her and then having sex all the way back."
- Despite his insistence, strong recommendations from Y and Z prevented him from taking the trip…"

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to identify whether each example relates to sexual exploitation or abuse, and to explain how.

II. Afterwards, quickly debrief the answer to each situation.

Statement 1: Offering money in exchange for sex constitutes sexual exploitation.

Statement 2: Having sex with or raping adults or children constitutes sexual abuse.

REAL-LIFE ALLEGATIONS

IS THIS SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OR ABUSE?

REAL ALLEGATIONS

- "Mr. X had promised my mum he would find me a job. After booking me a hotel room for 3 weeks, he invited me to his office, where he had a nurse give me a blood test.
- Later, he came to my hotel happy that my HIV test came back negative. He said that before he could get me a job, I should become his girlfriend, get pregnant and marry him…"

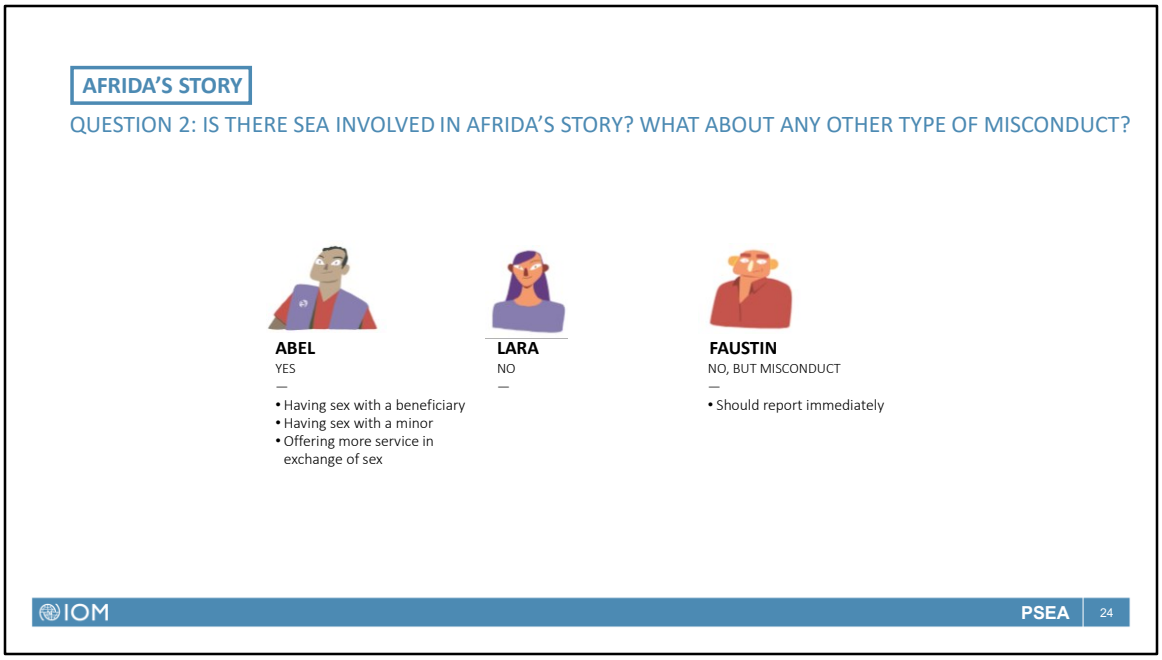

IOM PSEA 23

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to identify whether each example relates to sexual exploitation or abuse, and to explain how.

II. Quickly debrief the answer to each statement.

- Statement 1: Promising favours or gifts in order to obtain sexual benefits constitutes sexual exploitation. This includes withholding aid services as well.

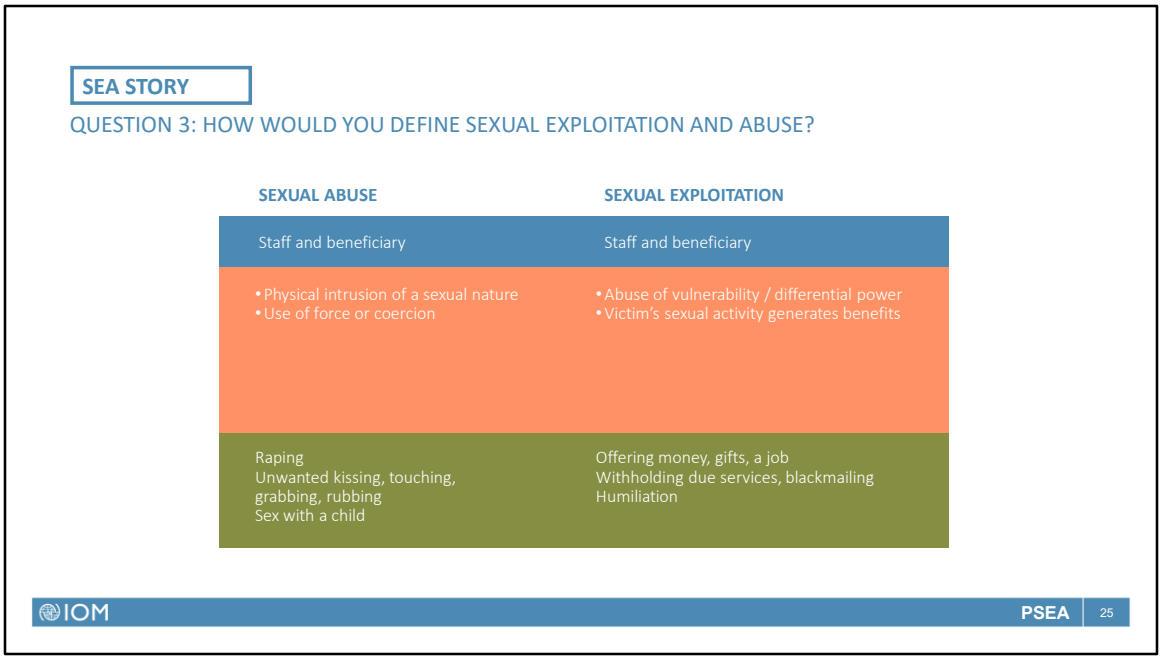

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask each team to retrieve their answers to Question 2.

- Give each team a few moments to change their answers if needed.
- Ask each team to choose a spokesperson within their group.
- Ask one spokesperson at a time to reveal the results of their discussion for one character only (starting with Victor and finishing with Ms. Banda and Robert Brown so as to be in sync with the PPT animations).
- Every team can debrief and discuss the answers of others.
- If you are short on time, discuss the answers with the entire class instead of team by team.
- For each character, present the answers on screen and discuss further with the class if needed.

II. Conclude the activity;

- Sexual exploitation and sexual abuse are considered serious misconduct. All two should be reported.
- If you have doubts, take action.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask each team to retrieve their answers to Question 3.

- This question serves as an overall debrief on defining and understanding the differences between the notions of abuse, exploitation and abuse.
- Ask the class to provide their answers for each notion at a time.
- Every team can debrief and discuss the answers of others.

II. For each notion, present the answers on screen and discuss it further with the class if needed. [TO BE REPLACED WITH THE VIDEO PRESENTATION ONCE IT IS AVAILABLE]

- Make sure to validate with the class that all notions have been well understood.
- Provide additional clarifications if needed.

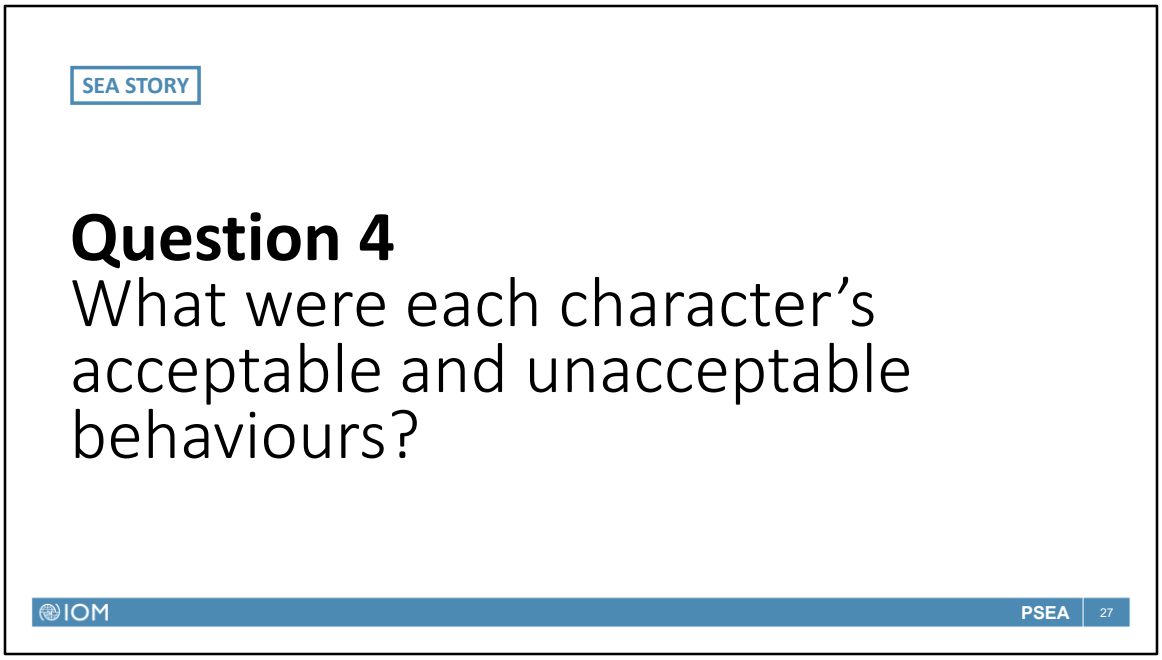

04

ACTIVITY 04

LEADING BY EXAMPLE

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To validate and ensure participants' knowledge and understanding of IOM'S PSEA policies and principles.
- To address any misconceptions by exploring real-life examples of acceptable and unacceptable behaviours as an IP working for IOM.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Post question 4 on screen and ask participants to answer it in teams.

- Give them 10-15 minutes to complete question 4.
- Don't correct the questions yet – complete the activities of the next three slides before.

AFRIDA'S STORY

QUESTION 4: WHAT WERE EACH CHARACTER'S ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOURS?

IOM PSEA 28

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Correct the activity.

- Ask each team to choose a spokesperson within their group.
- Ask one spokesperson at a time to reveal the results of their discussion for one character only.
- Every team can debrief and discuss the answers of others.
- If you are short on time, discuss the answers with the entire class instead of team by team.
- Discuss with the class the different behaviours that are acceptable and unacceptable for IPs working for IOM, as well as the reasons why they are so.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Ask participants to take a moment to think about how their individual roles within their mission/organization allow them to interact with beneficiaries on a day-to-day basis.

- Explain that the goal of this discussion is to communicate how unacceptable behaviours may vary for staff members depending on their role. Sharing this information will provide an array of behaviours that we might not have thought to be unacceptable.

II. Then, read them the examples below and ask them to identify whether the behaviour is acceptable or not, and explain why.

- A local canteen server jokes about refusing to serve a 16 year old beneficiary if she does not go out with him in the next weeks. After a few time, he feels rejected decides to reduce her portions until she agrees to go on a date. (UNACCEPTABLE)
- Leaving your office door open when speaking to opposite-sex colleagues and beneficiaries, whenever possible. (ACCEPTABLE)
- A female staff member working in an accommodation for unaccompanied children

(who are also beneficiaries) is engaged in a relationship with a 17-year-old minor residing in that facility. (UNACCEPTABLE)

- An IOM staff member working at a point of entry in a resettlement country tried to kiss a few of the beneficiaries he received at a hotel after their flight (UNACCEPTABLE)
- Providing escort services (e.g. driving) to opposite-sex beneficiaries and colleagues. (ACCEPTABLE)
- A chief of staff employs beneficiaries to clean the offices, and offers additional money and services in exchange for sex to those who are willing. (UNACCEPTABLE)

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Present the Zero Tolerance policy.

- Mention the following: "This means that IOM will not tolerate an atmosphere of impunity toward SEA. Zero tolerance means that active measures are being introduced to prevent sexual exploitation and abuse and that appropriate disciplinary action will be taken against all persons who are found to have violated the IOM Standards of Conduct."

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Present the 6 core principles related to SEA.

- About Principle 2: Despite national laws, which may allow sexual activity before the age of 18, IOM staff members and IPs are held to international standards. According to the UN Convention on the Rights of a Child, a child is anyone under the age of 18. Mistaken belief regarding the age of a child is not a defense.
- About Principle 3: This includes sexual favours or other forms of humiliating, degrading or exploitative behaviour, which is prohibited. This also includes using the services of prostitutes or sex workers, which is also prohibited, regardless of the legal status of prostitution in the laws of IOM staff members' home countries or duty stations. This prohibition extends to the use of prostitution outside working hours, including while on Rest & Recuperation and home leave. (Remember that all IOM's services to beneficiaries are free of charge.)
- About Principle 4: Any sexual relationship between those providing humanitarian assistance and protection and a person benefitting from such humanitarian assistance and protection that involves improper use of rank or position is prohibited. Such relationships undermine the credibility and integrity of humanitarian aid work
- About Principle 5: IOM rules state that all IOM personnel and IPs must report any SEA. This includes:
- SEA allegations, concerns, suspicions or retaliations
- SEA that you witness or know about
- SEA by anyone working with IOM as well as IOM Contractors/NGOs, their employees and other personnel
- Anyone working on IOM projects, or employed by or working for other organizations.

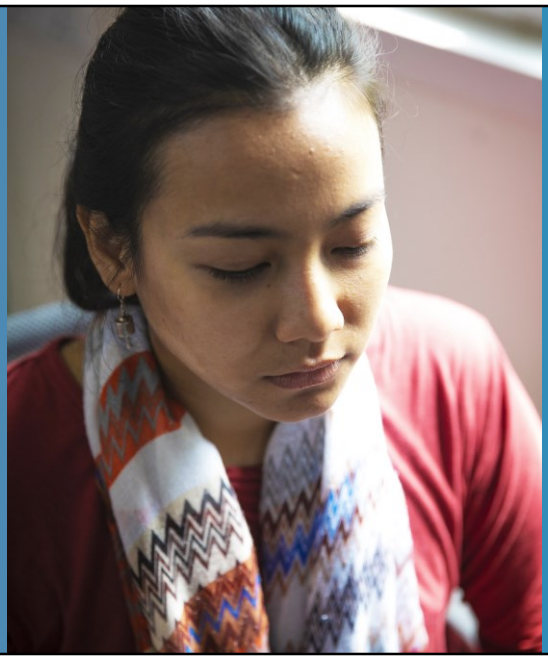

II. Conclude the activity.

- Mention the following: "It is difficult to outline hard and fast rules about what behaviours are appropriate or inappropriate for every mission. PSEA isn't always black and white and relies a great deal on your cultural context and best judgement. But beneficiaries do put their trust, and their lives, into our hands. It is our duty to maintain that trust above all. Every staff member represents the IOM, and our actions reflect on the organization."
- Answer any remaining questions.

FYI, you will find the 6 core principles in an easier English below:

Humanitarian workers are not allowed to have sexual relationships with anyone under the age of 18, even if it is legal in their country. Saying they did not know the person's true age is not a valid excuse.
Humanitarian workers are not allowed to pay for sex with money, employment, goods or services – including goods and services intended as aid to people in need. They must not use promises of these things to make other people accept any kind of behaviour that humiliates or exploits them. This includes paying or offering money for sex with a prostitute.
Humanitarian workers have influence over who receives goods and services. This places them in a position of power in relation to people who need assistance. For that reason, humanitarian organizations strongly encourage staff not to have sexual relationships with anyone affected by a humanitarian emergency. Such relationships make humanitarian action seem less honest and credible.

If a humanitarian worker is worried or suspects that anyone in their organization or another aid organization may be breaking humanitarian rules on sexual conduct, they must report it, following procedures set up by their agency.
Humanitarian workers must create and maintain a work environment which prevents unacceptable sexual behaviour and encourages staff to behave as set out in their codes of conduct. All managers are responsible for supporting and developing systems which maintain this environment.

ACTIVITY 05

LOOKING AT SEA THROUGH A VICTIM'S EYES

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To grasp the gravity of the consequences SEA has on its victims
- To acknowledge the feelings of SEA victims and understand their reactions.
- To recognize the importance of adequately responding to SEA confessions from victims.

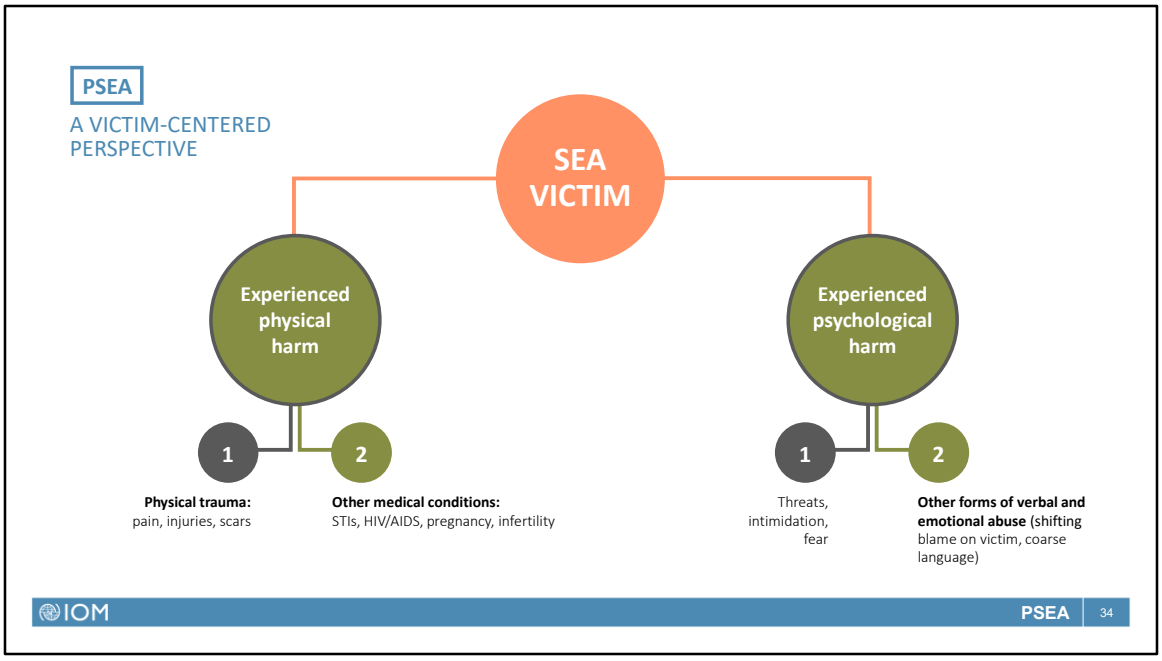

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Post question 5 on screen and ask participants to answer it in teams.

- Give them 10 minutes to complete question 5.

I. Correct the activity.

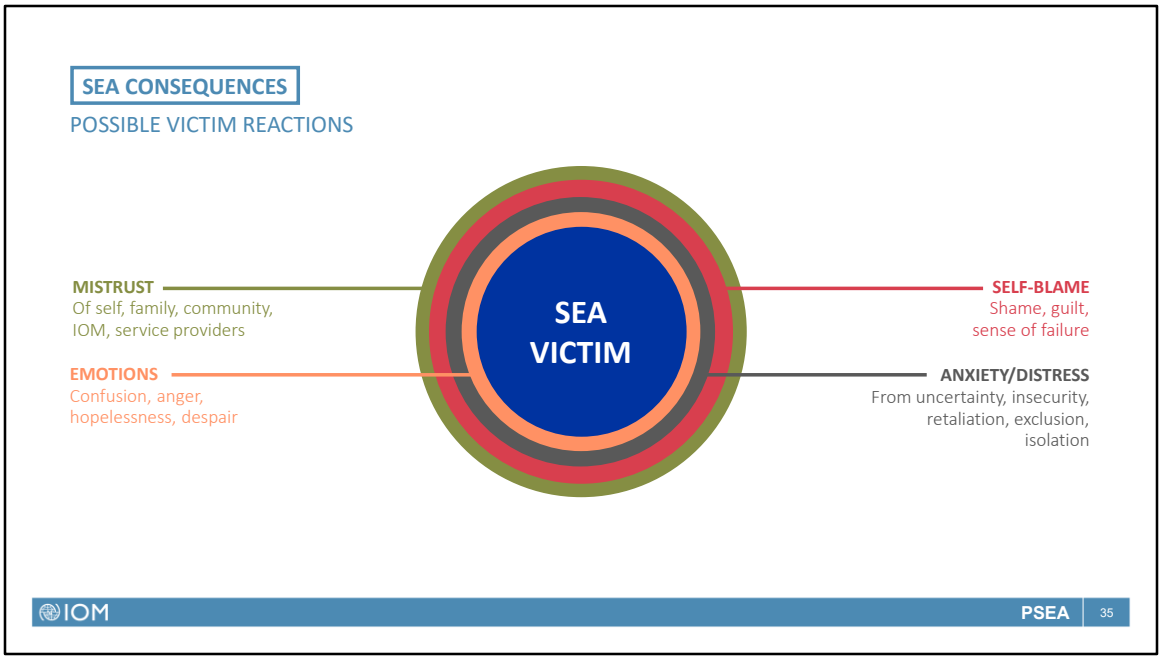

- Ask each team to choose a spokesperson within their group.
- Ask every spokesperson to reveal the results of their discussion.
- Every team can debrief and discuss the answers of others.
- If you are short on time, discuss the answers with the entire class instead of team by team.
- Debrief the activity using the next two slides.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Present and explain the victim-centered perspective approach.

- Explain that there are two main categories of SEA victim experiences: physical harm and psychological harm.
- Mention that no two victims react to SEA the same way.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Present and explain the possible reactions SEA victims might have.

- Reflect on some of the common reactions victims of SEA may have. Examples include, but are not limited to:
  - Pain, trauma, physical harm
  - Unwanted pregnancy, abortion, infertility
  - STD, HIV/AIDS
  - Stigmatization (ex.: when people form an opinion about you or judge you solely based on what happened to you)
  - Loss of reputation
  - Fear, confusion, depression
  - Death, self harm
  - Rejection by spouse/family/community (the feeling that you are left all alone)

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Provide the instructions for the activity:

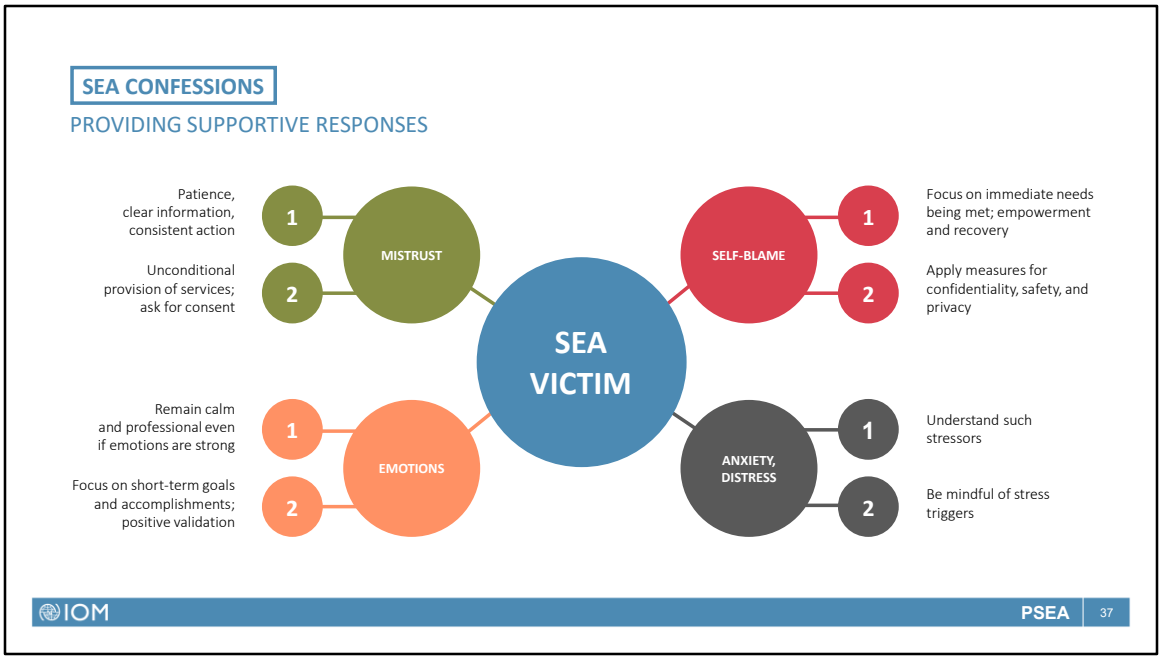

- Give each team one set of Act5_RolePlay_Cards_IP.
- Tell each team to place their cards in a pile (one pile per team).
- Each team member should pick one card at a time and read the situation aloud.
- The team's role and task is shown on screen. They must imagine the SEA victim on each card, answer the questions on screen, and discuss their answers.
-  If you have an energetic group, each team could sub-divide in pairs and act out each scenario in a role-playing fashion.

II. Debrief the activity:

- Ask "What is the most important thing you learned or experienced from this activity?”

- Ask “How would you have liked to be treated by the staff member(s) you confessed to?”
- Transition to a debrief using the next slides.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

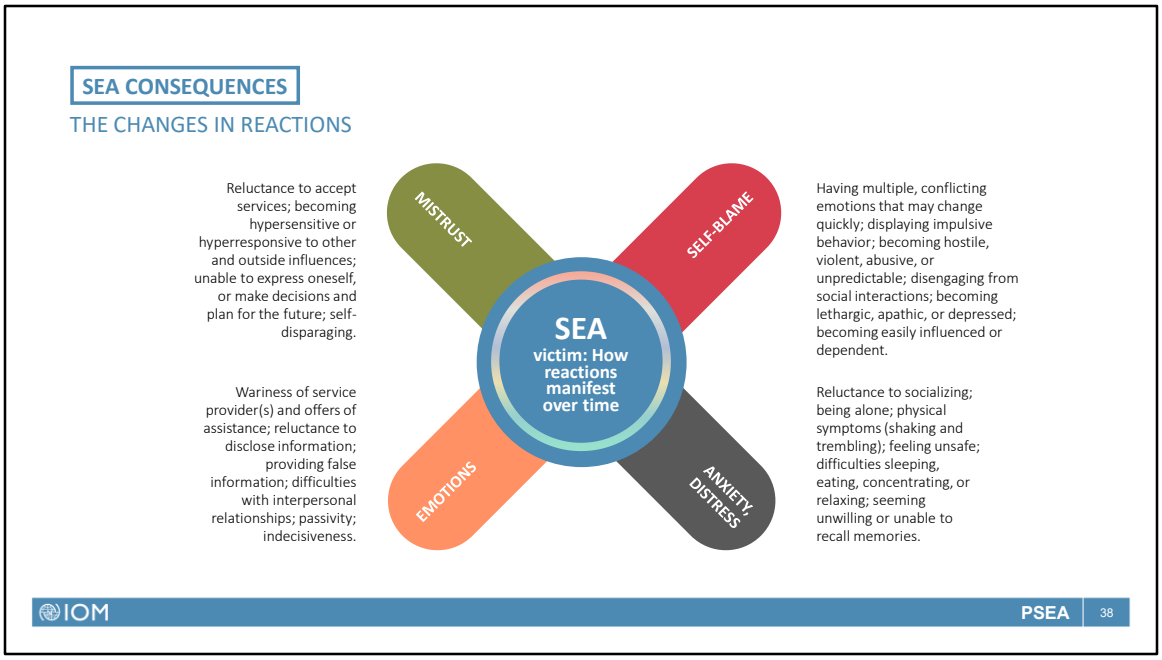

I. Explain the following:

- A victim may have a range of reactions to his/her SEA experience. As mentioned, some of those reactions include mistrust, emotionally instability, self-blame, anxiety, or distress. So what can you do as an NGO staff member to provide a supportive response?

II. Go through the tips and tricks shown on screen, and explain the following:

- If the SEA victim has high levels of mistrust, you should be patient, provide clear information, and display consistent, professional behavior. You should (re)explain that provision of services is unconditional (no fees for the victim) and always ask for consent before proceeding. This helps develop a rapport with the SEA victim and counteract any mistrust they may have.
- Similarly, the SEA victim may have a range of emotions that vary daily and weekly. When this happens, you should acknowledge these emotions and remain calm and professional.
- Focusing on short-term goals and accomplishments is a positive way to support the victim.

- If the victim is experiencing self-blame, try to include them in decisions that will foster their independence.
- Be on the lookout for anxiety or stress signs in order to adjust your intervention and not increase their stress or anxiety levels.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Discuss how the reactions of SEA victims may change over time:

- On screen are some key ways the SEA victim's reactions may manifest and take root, as well as affect their behaviour over time.
- Over time, the SEA victim's reactions may be influenced by subsequent positive or negative experiences, the passage of time, and factors such as culture, gender, and age.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Conclude the activity:

- Ask the class: "Besides the direct victim, is there anyone else who can experience the consequences of SEA?"
- Elaborate on the participants' answers when you can.
- Finally, show and explain the answers on screen.
- If more examples are given by participants, that is OK. Try exploring what it means for them, in their context.

EXERCISE:

Objective:
Demonstrate how relationships between the Organization and those they work with (community, UN agencies, IPs, NGOs, governments, member states, donors, etc.) can be easily ruined if trust is broken.
Tools:
String – one string per participant
Paper – at least one per participant

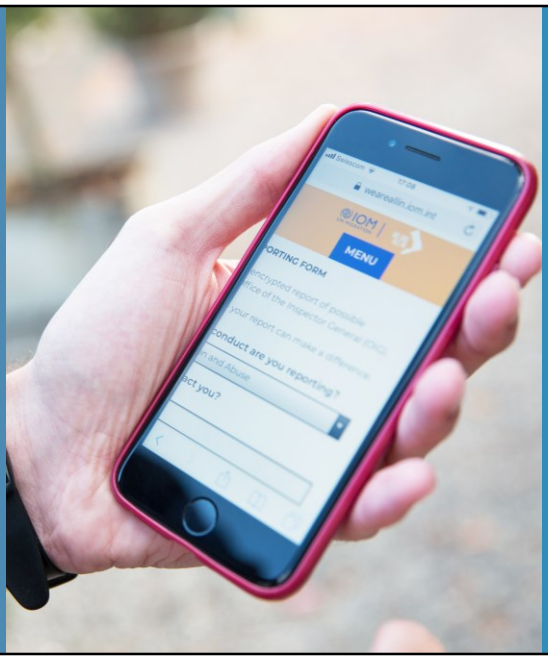

Pens
Scissors

Steps:

Write down a list of 5 stakeholders that you work with frequently.
Focus on just one of the stakeholders you wrote in your list. This is your new identity – write this down on the other side of your paper in large letters (this must be varied, not all participants should select the same stakeholder – moderator should walk among participants and verify diverse identities have been chosen).
Ask participants to form a circle.
Choose one volunteer to represent IOM for this exercise. The volunteer must move to the centre of the circle.
Distribute a piece of string to each participant – this should connect each "stakeholder" member of the circle with the "IOM" volunteer standing in the middle.
Ask each "stakeholder" these questions:
Would you trust IOM/the Organization if SEA was committed and not reported?
Would you trust IOM/ the Organization if an SEA report has hidden or not handled well?
When each "stakeholder" says "no," cut the string connecting them with the "IOM/the Organization" volunteer in the middle.
Repeat this process with all "stakeholders" in the circle.

Conclusion:

At the end of this exercise, IOM/the isolated Organization is left alone in the circle without any possible cooperation with its former partners and is unable to accomplish its aims. Loss of trust in this exercise is the result of non-reported/mishandled SEA incidents.
It is important to understand how fragile relationships can be. The Organization must always be aware that they are accountable to their partners/stakeholders and that once trust has been lost, it is very difficult to gain back. If a case of SEA is not appropriately handled, it can disastrously prevent collaboration and cooperation, which will harm the vulnerable communities and beneficiaries we all seek to work with and for.

ACTIVITY 06

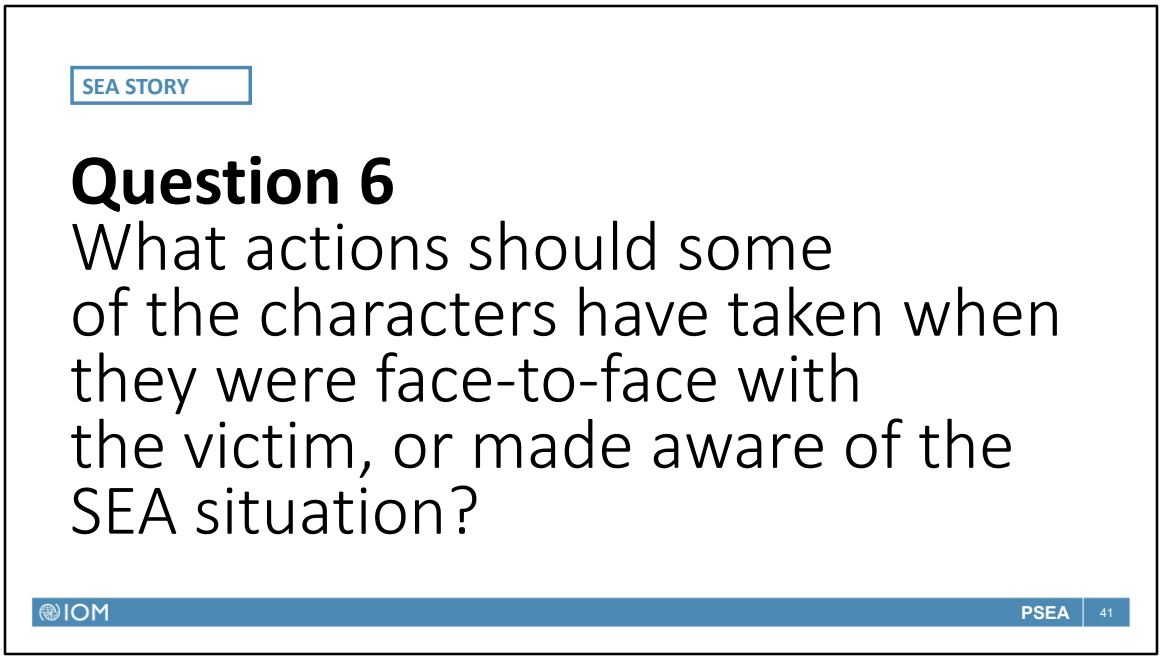

REPORTING ALLEGATIONS OF SEA

IMPORTANT NOTE FOR FACILITATOR

If a discussion around the obligation to report SEA allegations has already happened earlier during this Training, quickly recap that "In doubt, always report" and skip this activity #6.

ACTIVITY GOALS

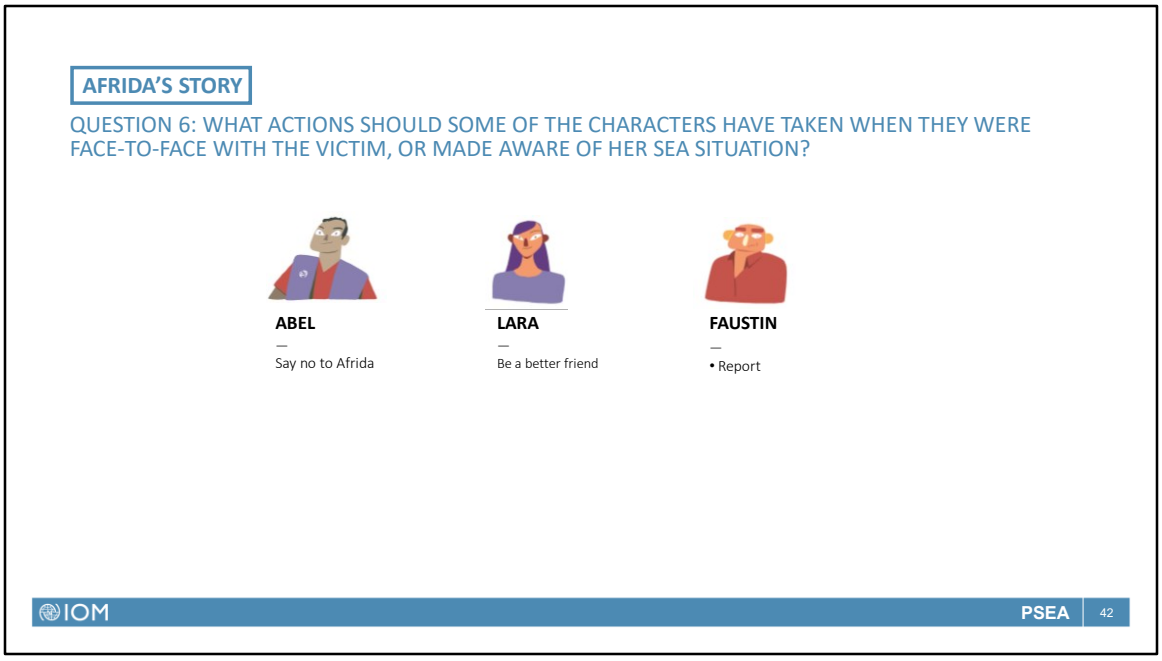

- To understand the urgency of developing a culture of response to SEA by reporting concerns and allegations
- To explain IOM's reporting process and how to report any SEA concerns
- To present the new online reporting tool

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Post question 6 on screen and ask participants to answer it in teams.

- Give them 10 minutes to complete question 6

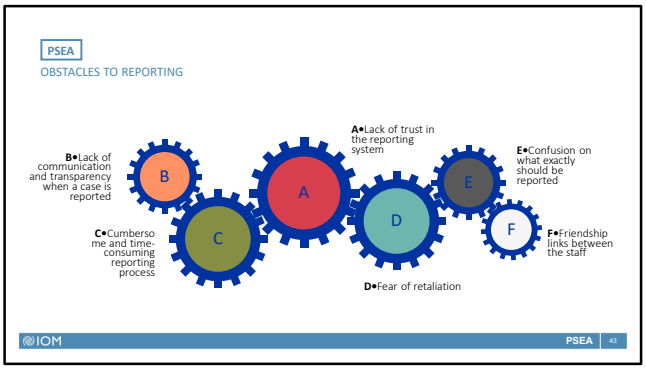

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Correct the activity.

- Ask the class to provide their answers for each character.
- Every team can debrief and discuss the answers of others.
- If you are short on time, discuss the answers with the entire class instead of team by team.
- Show the answers on screen.

II. Ask the class the following question:

- Should you report if you hear rumors of SEA?
- Listen to answers, and mention that when there is doubt, always report as long as it is done in good faith.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

II. Tell them that in early 2018, two missions in Lebanon and Bangladesh were conducted by an external agency to understand the structural and cultural issues affecting IOM's current PSEA system.

- Private individual interviews, focus groups, as well as observation and analysis were conducted throughout this mission.
- This mission helped IOM identify and confirm certain constraints linked to the under-reporting happening within field missions.
- Besides this investigation, an analysis of all feedback ever received about the previous version of this training was conducted, and resulted in this revamped version of the PSEA training.

III. Present the answers on screen.

- Explain: These elements or constraints are what came out of the analysis within IOM missions.
- Ask participants how they feel about these reasons for under-reporting.

- This question may lead to many comments. Make sure to take note of any questions/comments that are unrelated to this training content in order to answer them later.

IV. If needed, explain what retaliation means:

- Any direct or indirect harm that is recommended, threatened or done because someone reported SEA, gave information, or cooperated with an investigation.
- Examples of retaliation include: making threats, taking away duties, giving poor performance appraisals, terminating or not renewing contracts.

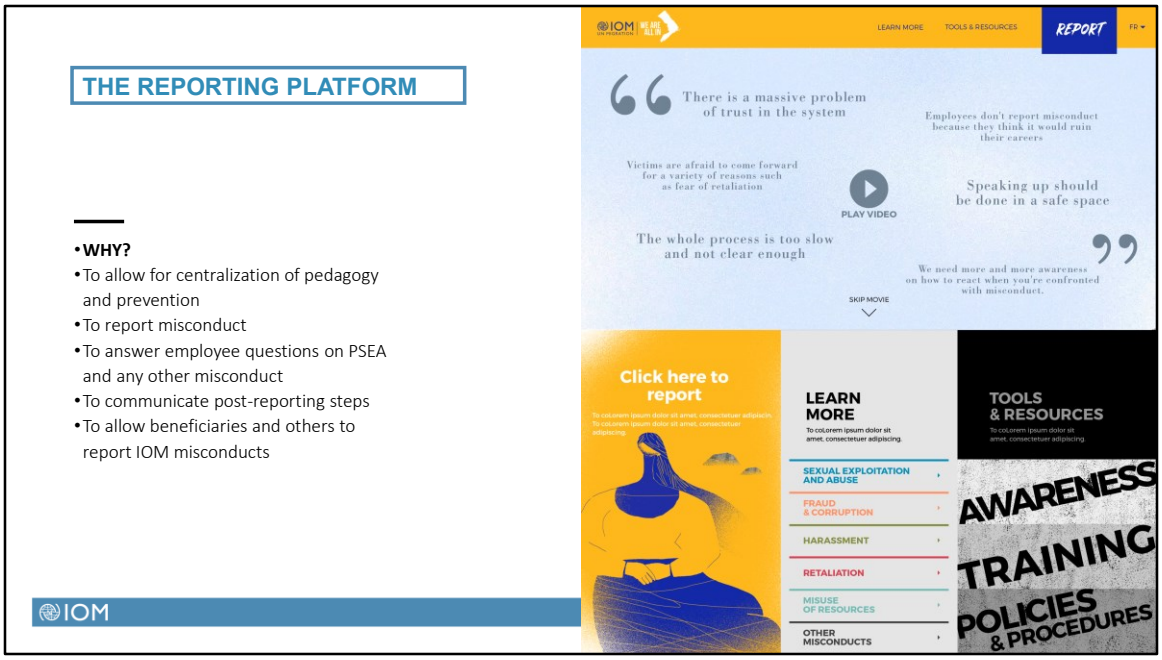

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Tell participants that IOM heard this feedback loud and clear, and that concrete actions were taken, then launch the REPORTING video. Show between X and Y time frame.

II. Present the WE ARE ALL IN ecosystem initiative:

- "We Are All In is a new system of reporting and getting feedback. It is a collective movement promoted by both digital and physical tools."
- "We Are All In is a centralized digital platform for education, transparency, and reporting."

To showcase the video, download it before on weareallin.iom.int, in the training material page.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Explain the advantages of the centralized platform.

- Then show the platform's main reporting menu. (TBD)
- If you have time, invite learners to watch the We are all in video on the platform.

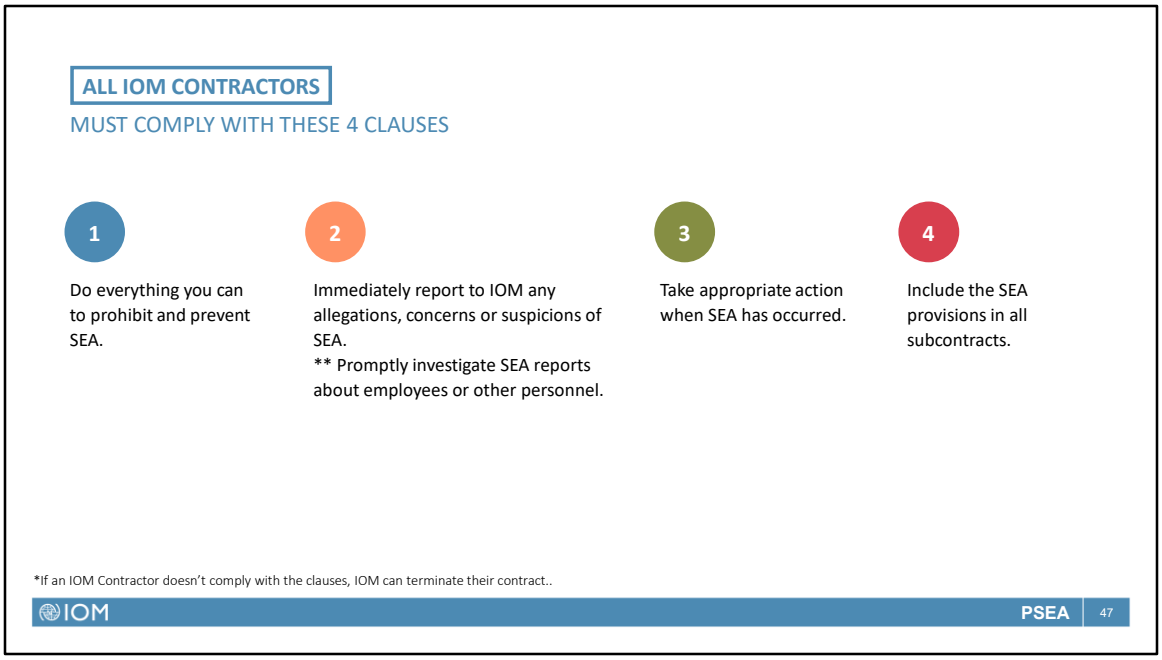

II. Ask if at least one participant per team has a smartphone with Internet access.

- Ask that person, and everybody with a smartphone, to take his/her phone and connect to the www.weareallin.iom.int web page.
- Participants who don't have phones or Internet access should gather around those who do.
- Tell them to explore the site (without creating any report).
- If no one has access to the Internet, play the video demonstration available on the next slide.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Play this video if participants cannot access the platform on their smartphones.

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Explain and remind them that:

- As an implementing partner of IOM, your organization has committed to comply with these 4 clauses.

07

ACTIVITY 07

CARING AS A DUTY

ACTIVITY GOALS

- To understand the importance of providing care to SEA victims during the investigation process
- To present the duty of care process
- To recognize and be conscious of how every decision, even if taken in good faith, can possibly have negative impacts on SEA victims

FACILITATOR INSTRUCTIONS

I. Briefly explain:.

- No matter which organization we work for, our common mission(s) puts us all in contact with beneficiaries. These beneficiaries put there trust in us during what might be the most difficult moments of there lives. We owe it to them to care, and to act in their best interest at all times.

CONCLUSION

- Tell them: "Take a moment to reflect on what you have learned during the day. Each individually, write down what you think you can do in your everyday job to prevent/protect against/put an end to SEA. Or what you and your team can change to ensure SEA does not prevail."
- Give them five minutes to individually complete this task.

II. When everyone is finished writing down their statements:

- Give each team one big sticky piece of paper Act8_Team-Commitment.
- Tell them to share what they wrote with their team.
- Once everybody has shared their thoughts, they should write down a global team commitment on the sticky piece of paper, and each sign their names.

IOM UN MIGRATION | WE ARE ALL IN

WE ARE ALL IN

weareallin.iom.int

Abel

Abel is a relief distribution officer working for Relief International, a local NGO in the country. Although the refugee camp he works at is managed by IOM, it is dependent upon Relief International's support, as it is an implementing partner.

Abel was raised in a nearby village. He feels his life has been privileged and successful, and therefore is always looking for ways to give back to others. Humanitarian work became Abel's passion when the refugee camp was set up close to his home. As a relief distributor, Abel is in frequent contact with beneficiaries, allowing him to develop friendships with many camp members. He is popular, caring, handsome, and funny. In fact, when he's not on duty, he can usually be found joking with large crowds of people.

Afrida

Afrida, a 17-year-old girl living alone in the camp, has noticed Abel's popularity, and is drawn to his good looks and sense of humor. She has tried to talk to him many times before but usually feels too shy to speak. After a couple of months, she finally finds the courage to say hello, and Abel responds in a very friendly manner. The two begin a friendship and discover they both enjoy painting. Soon after, they often meet in the camp's social recreation area, spending time painting or simply talking together for hours.

Despite her new friendship with Abel, Afrida hates life in the camp. She is isolated, entirely dependent on humanitarian relief, and feels lonelier as the day drags on.

Lara

Afrida's closest friend, Lara, insists that Afrida's life would be different outside the camp. Maybe Afrida could become a famous painter! She advises Afrida to become Abel's "special friend," arguing that as an NGO staff member, Abel could provide Afrida with the extra resources to start a better life. Afrida is unsure at first, but eventually grows convinced that Lara is right: becoming "special friends" with Abel will be the only way for her to pursue her dreams. Although she does not feel entirely comfortable with a situation that may ruin her reputation, she has grown desperate.

Abel returns home and finds Afrida waiting outside his house. She is nervous and unable to explain what she wants from him. He lets her in and offers her some water, hoping to calm her down. As soon as Afrida is inside, she declares her strong desire to sleep with Abel. She also implies that they can meet on a regular basis if Abel provides her with some extra services and helps her escape camp life. Abel is shocked. He would never have expected his friend to act this way! He is aware that Afrida's culture makes it unacceptable for women to have extramarital sexual relationships, and is therefore not sure if sleeping with her would be a good idea.

Abel vaguely remembers a work training that discussed sexual abuse. Unfortunately, he has forgotten the details since he did not think the training was important at the time, and therefore did not pay much attention. He reasons that the rules probably do not apply to him because he is a local implementing partner and figures there cannot be any consequences if Afrida shows interest in him first. He also cannot remember Afrida's exact age but decides that this is not so important. After all, Afrida looks like a grown-up woman, and in Abel's village, women who look this way are usually married.

Abel tries to think quickly: "It's not as if I solicited Afrida's attention, she purposely came to my house to offer herself! It must be my looks, personality, and sense of humor that she admires... that's nothing to be ashamed of! I would be a fool not to make the most of this opportunity. Also, why shouldn't I give her a little bit more help? It makes me sad to see her so unhappy!" With that, he leads Afrida to the bedroom.

Faustin

The next day, Abel shares the details of what happened with his colleague Faustin during their shared shift. Faustin is uneasy with the story and the fact that Abel is talking about it. Faustin knows that if rumors were to spread around the camp, Afrida may be rejected from the community.

Still, it was a consensual encounter so Faustin is not sure if Abel has acted inappropriately. He decides to investigate on his own before he takes any action. In the meantime, Abel and Afrida continue to meet in the evenings, except they meet in Abel's house instead of the community recreation area.

Faustin soon learns that Afrida is only 17 years old, which is below the age of legal consent in the country. He also speaks with Lara and discovers that Afrida hopes to use this sexual relationship to gain more services. Faustin feels that Abel needs to put an end to these encounters: "What if the community finds out about the affair? What if Afrida becomes pregnant? This won't look good for the organization. Also, will Abel get in trouble? There is too much that could go wrong here. Besides, Afrida is only using Abel for his resources. Maybe Abel can go find a woman who really cares about him instead."

Faustin tells his colleague to either stop meeting with Afrida, or to formalize their relationship by getting married as soon as possible. Beyond that, Faustin is not sure what else he can or should do, so he decides not to take further action. "I have already voiced my concerns to Abel. What he does now is up to him."

IOM
UN MIGRATION

WE ARE ALL IN

wearealliin.iom.int

Juan Diego

Juan Diego is a 52-year-old husband and father who works for IOM as a security guard. He loves his job: he is always friendly and cheerful, and working for the UN has elevated his social status. When migrants come into the office for appointments, he can see in their eyes that they respect him a lot.

It is rumoured that when women have appointments, Juan Diego helps them in a very "special way". According to some people in the community, he has sometimes even been seen downtown in the company of young girls. The senior manager has repeatedly dismissed these allegations with the following statement: "Juan Diego is a hard worker and dedicated family man. I do not believe he would act in a way that would put the Organization or his marriage at risk."

Flora's Family

Flora is a migrant who lives with her parents, grandmother, and three younger brothers in an IOM-managed camp. Her parents' meagre financial resources make obtaining food, clothing, and adequate education for all the children a constant struggle. They are desperate for their family to be selected for resettlement.

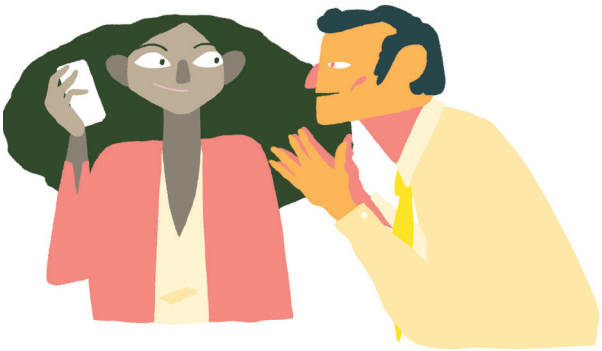

One afternoon, Flora's family leaves the camp with high hopes for their first interview at the IOM office. Unfortunately, when they arrive for their appointment, the queue is long and most of the people waiting seem distressed and dejected. Flora's parents have no clear idea of how the resettlement process works, and the only person they see is a guard in the corner intently looking at their daughter with a sparkle in his eyes. After waiting for what feels like hours, Flora's father goes to the restroom, where he encounters Juan Diego. The two men start chatting and the guard leads Flora's father to believe that as an IOM employee, he has a lot of power. Juan Diego boasts that he can speed up a person's resettlement process if he so chooses.

Juan Diego then reveals that he is willing to help Flora and her family. They seem so kind and deserving that he won't even ask for payment in exchange...maybe just some quality time with their beautiful daughter. Flora's father is initially upset at what Juan Diego seems to be implying, but he is also desperate to help his family survive in any way he can. With much reluctance, Flora's father accepts Juan Diego's offer and suggests that Flora and Juan Diego go out for a coffee. The two men organize for Juan Diego to meet with Flora later in a café. Flora's father then returns to the line to share what has happened with his family. Flora's mother thinks that, at best, Juan Diego can speed up their selection for resettlement, and at worst, he can still provide extra services and gifts. In her eyes, it is a win-win situation.

When Flora meets Juan Diego in a café some hours later, he quickly guides her to a more private location that he keeps reserved for his "special friends".

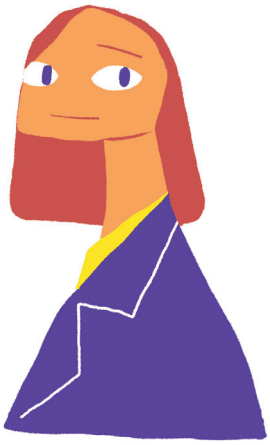

Juan Diego is pleased with how things went. He tells Flora's family that he can arrange for meetings with IOM's resettlement team to be scheduled more quickly in exchange for more "coffees" with Flora.

Carlos and Maria

Carlos and Maria, two of Juan Diego's colleagues, begin to see Flora hanging around Juan Diego often. Carlos asks Maria if she thinks the rumours that Juan Diego exchanges extra services for sex are true. Maria is not sure, but she knows that Juan Diego has a loving wife and children in his home community. Maria also points out how close Flora is with her family, arguing that there must not be anything wrong happening or else Flora's parents would know about it. Carlos is not quite convinced but decides he has more urgent problems in the camp that need to be addressed.

Flora

Flora is unhappy with the situation. She does not really like Juan Diego but feels that the relationship is her passport to a new life in another country. Since Juan Diego does nothing to discourage these hopes, their arrangement continues.

Fictional Case Study | Gouta's story

IOM
UN MIGRATION

WE ARE ALL IN

wearealliin.iom.int

Gouta

Gouta is a 32-year old single mother living with her five children in a camp managed by IOM. Luckily, Gouta's uncle and three cousins live and work in the vicinity, so she does not feel entirely alone.

Life as a single mother is very, very difficult. Gouta's few resources make it hard to meet her children's needs, and even though Gouta is intelligent and a hard worker, she is unable to find a job. Still, her children cannot remember an easy life, and Gouta yearns to start a new life outside of the camp.

One afternoon, Gouta decides to ask about the possibility of working in the camp. She starts by visiting the IOM office. There she meets Victor, an IOM staff member responsible for resource distribution and education initiatives in the camp.

Victor

Victor is very touched when Gouta shares her story with him, and he wishes that there could be something more he could do to help. He connects easily with Gouta and decides that there would be no harm in helping her to find a job. Victor gives Gouta his professional and personal cell phone number and encourages her to stay in touch.

A few days later, Gouta is offered a temporary job by a local NGO and is grateful for Victor's help. They soon develop a close friendship, with regular texts and phone calls. They rarely see each other in person, but they occasionally bump into each other at the local market.

Over time, Victor finds it increasingly hard to get Gouta off his mind. He goes out of his way to provide her and her family with goods and non-food items (NFI), and even offers to provide financial support. Hoping to see their relationship develop, he begins to send Gouta messages of admiration and friendship from his official IOM mobile phone. At home, he continues to text Gouta from his private phone. In these messages, he expresses his love for Gouta and makes explicit comments about her body. He does not feel that he is acting improperly because he truly believes the things he says to Gouta, and he is sure she feels the same way.

Naomi

Victor's colleague Naomi, another IOM staff member, notices that Victor uses his work phone frequently for what appears to be private matters. Naomi asks Victor about his phone usage, and he confesses his feelings for Gouta. He tells Naomi that he helped Gouta get a job in the local NGO and that he is trying to support her. He decides not to mention the messages he sends from his personal phone. These messages are sent in my private time and are not the business of the Organization. Naomi is not happy to hear that Victor is doing things that could damage the Organization's reputation. However, since Victor is not doing anything physically with Gouta, Naomi thinks that Victor's actions must be harmless.

Nuru

Meanwhile, Gouta is concerned by Victor's explicit comments. She is not interested in pursuing an intimate relationship with Victor, but she is worried about losing the extra support that he has given her family. Gouta decides to tell her friend Nuru, another beneficiary in the IOM camp. Nuru tells Gouta to accept Victor's advances, suggesting that being "special friends" with an IOM staff member is a small sacrifice to pay if it means Gouta's whole family will benefit. Even though Victor's messages make her uncomfortable, Gouta believes that Nuru is right, so she continues to message with him.

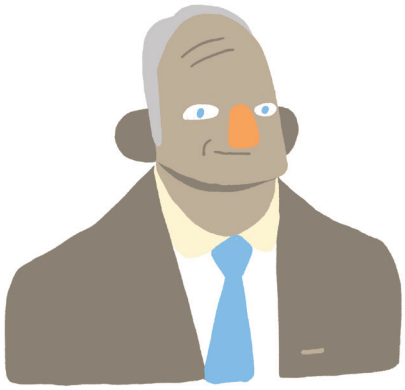

Mykel

One evening, Gouta receives several photographs from Victor, including some pictures of him without clothes on. He continues to express his love for her and asks for Gouta to send photos in return. She is shocked by Victor's suggestion and decides to contact Mykel, an IOM staff member she trusts. Mykel is surprised to hear this, but he is friends with Victor and does not want to see him get in trouble. He explains to Gouta that she must have somehow encouraged Victor's behaviour. Mykel tells Gouta to ignore Victor if she is not interested. He also suggests that she has brought shame on her family by encouraging Victor's actions. Mykel then decides cut every extra service that Gouta is receiving, and contacts the local NGO that employs her to ask them to terminate her contract. Mykel is very happy, feeling that his discretion and loyalty to the organization reflects positively on him.

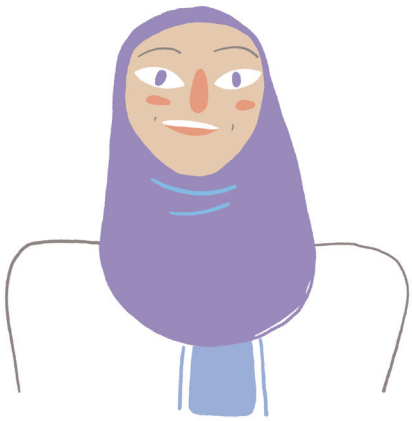

Fearful for her reputation and anxious about future contact, Gouta decides to block Victor's number. Even if Victor cannot contact Gouta anymore, she is still worried about what her uncle and cousins would think if they heard about what had happened. Would they blame me for receiving naked photos? Or worse, what if they thought I responded to Victor's photos with pictures of myself? They would be so angry with me, I would probably face honor redemption acts. She is also concerned about what will happen when Victor realizes his number is blocked. And she becomes fearful of what Victor will do if she reports the matter any further. Will his extra aid stop? What will happen to the additional financial support I've been receiving?

Ahmed

The following day, Gouta only receives the standard supply package that all camp beneficiaries receive. She becomes more stressed and worried. Unsure of what to do, she decides to confide in her oldest cousin, Ahmed Purnell. Ahmed works at the Red Relief Organization. Gouta chooses not to tell Ahmed Victor's name or title. She only says that he works in the country Sub Office, and that he contacted her from telephone number +997-654-321. When Gouta shares her story with Ahmed, he understands why she is worried and is angry at Victor for taking advantage of his privileged position. Ahmed contacts his supervisor for additional support so that Victor can be held responsible.

Ms. Banda

Ms. Banda is Ahmed's supervisor at the Red Relief Organization. She feels that IOM should handle the matter internally immediately holds a private meeting with Mr. Robert Brown, Head of the country Sub Office.

Mr. Brown

Mr. Brown is not able to gather much information. He checks IOM records to see if an IOM staff member has the +977-654-321 number. He confirms it belongs to someone named Victor Smith. The Red Relief Organization does not share Gouta's name or contact details. Ahmed explains that Gouta does not want to make a statement for fear of what might happen afterward. She is concerned about how their family may react. Ahmed tells Mr. Brown not to do anything that would allow Victor to know that Gouta told on him and in turn make him react harmfully. Mr. Brown is convinced that the best way to protect the beneficiary's privacy is to take care of the matter himself. He decides to not report the case to headquarters and conducts his own investigation.

Power walk questions:

INSTRUCTIONS

1: Pass around the envelope of character cards and ask each participant to take 1 card and remind them not to show the card to anyone. Each participant should take a few minutes to imagine the life of his/her character: work, family, livelihood, emotional state, health condition, etc.

2: Once everyone has a character card, find a cleared room where there is plenty of room for participants to walk across the room without running into any barriers.

3: Ask all participants to stand on one side of the room.

4: Tell participants that they will hear a series of statements. Read out the series of statements located in the Facilitator's Guide (see below) one by one. Participants who feel they would answer "yes" to the statement based on their character should take one large step forward. If the participants feel their character would not answer "yes" to the statement, they should be instructed to stay where they are. Sometimes they may not be sure whether a statement applies to them, and should just take their best guess.

5: Keep reading the questions out loud till the person that is in the front is unable to move forward any longer.

6: At the end of the exercise, ask each participant to reveal their character starting from the back. If some people are not in the correct place, place them approximately where they should have been in the continuum.

REFLECTION

Ask participants what they think the trend is and why they think some participants moved further ahead than others.

DEBRIEFING

Ask everyone to stay where they are. Starting in the back, ask each person to say his or her character.

Ask a few people at the back of the room: "How did you feel? What was it like to be at the back of the room?" Ask a few people at the front: "How did you feel? What was it like to be in the front of room? You may also ask a few people in the middle. Invite the rest of the group to also comment on what has happened.

Ask: "In our operations and the environment we work in, who holds the power?"

BRAINSTORM

Government, men, adults, police, military, etc. Acknowledge those more vulnerable members of the community, as revealed in the exercise. Invite the rest of the group to also comment on what has happened.

(People may mention power or vulnerability.)

State: "All of these statements are about power or access to power.

What do we mean by POWER?"

*Elicit: Power is the ability to influence or control. It includes access to decision-making processes.

Ask: "Those who felt strong or powerful, why did you feel powerful?"

Ask: "Those who did not, why not. For those in the back, why do you think you were in that position?"

*Elicit: what things give people power: money, position, authority, gender.

*Elicit: what things contribute to abuse based on power inequalities: vulnerability, poverty, breakdown in social structures (such as during displacement), lack of legal protection, impunity for perpetrators, culture, gender beliefs.

Ask: "Is power always bad?"

*Elicit: No. Power can be used in positive ways but the potential for abuse is there.

POWER WALK QUESTIONS:

- I can influence decisions made at community level.
- I get to meet visiting government officials.
- I can read newspapers regularly.
- I have time and access to the Internet.
- I have my own bank account.
- I can speak in extended family meetings.
- I have access to clean drinking water.
- I went to secondary or I expect to go to secondary school.
- I can pay for treatment at a hospital if necessary.
- I can speak at a village meeting.
- I eat at least two full meals a day.
- I sometimes attend workshops and seminars.
- I am not afraid of walking on my own at night.
- I have a say on how family money is spent.
- I am not afraid of violence in my home.
- I have never had to line up or beg for food.
- I do not have to worry about providing for myself or my family.
- I live in a place that I rent or own.
- I have legal status in my country of residence.
- I feel welcome where I am.

KEY MESSAGES

Violence and exploitation are almost always linked to power. Those who have more power can exploit and abuse others. Those who have the least power are most likely to be exploited and abused.

Today we are talking very specifically about abuses that happen at the hands of IOM staff and partners. However, it is important to bear in mind the context in which this occurs and to realise that this is part of a much larger problem of gender-based violence.

Puzzle instructions:

PRESENT THE ACTIVITY

The goal is to do a quick recap of all notions that were discussed today and to complete the giant puzzle. That puzzle will remain here, with you, after the training session is over. It will demonstrate our commitment, as individuals and as an organization, to prevent sexual exploitation and abuse within our organization.

1: Hand each participant in each team a small piece of paper and a pencil.

2: Tell them: « Take a moment to reflect on what you have learned during the day. Each individually, write down what you think you can do in your everyday job to prevent/protect against/put an end to SEA. Or what you and your team can change to ensure SEA does not prevail. »

3: Give them five minutes to individually complete this task. Meanwhile, prepare for the next puzzle activity.

4: Go position the giant puzzle pieces numbered 6, 9, 10 and 14 to 20 on the floor somewhere in the class.

The location of the puzzle pieces should be chosen wisely as they will remain there after the training session is over.

5: Insert #10 in #15 and 16.
Insert #14 in #19 and 20.

Consult the puzzle layout available on the next slide if needed.

6: Ask the class to put aside their team commitment for a few minutes in order to complete the last activity of the day:
